2020, the Unexpected Year

and our resilient community

No one could have predicted the unexpected challenges that this past year would bring or how much of an impact it would have on the lives of so many of our neighbors. It was not long before the NH Food Bank and its more than 400 partner agencies began to respond to a greater need than ever before. A testament to the fact that hunger can affect anyone at any time, even your neighbors.

Many individuals are experiencing food insecurity for the very first time and have been faced with difficult choices like, paying their rent or buying groceries, turning on the heat or providing their children with dinner. Choices that no one should ever have to make.

As unexpected as this year was, the New Hampshire Food Bank was ready to meet the challenge all thanks to solutions made possible by the resilient support of our community. We will never truly be able to convey how grateful our organization is for every generous act of kindness or dollar donated towards helping our neighbors. We’d like to share a quick look at the many ways in which your support made an incredible difference this year.

Thanks to the dedication of our donors, volunteers, partner agencies and staff, the New Hampshire Food Bank’s operations continued to navigate uncharted waters without any major interruption. Food distribution totaled more than 17.7 million pounds, providing approximately 14,913,220 meals to individuals and families experiencing hunger across the entire state. This was a 24% increase from 2019 and the most food ever distributed by our organization. (Continued on page 2)
With logistical support from the NH National Guard, the NH Food Bank established a drive-thru mobile food pantry model as a safe alternative to distribute food directly to neighbors in need. From March to December 2020, the NH Food Bank hosted 71 mobile food pantry distributions in several cities/towns across the state, directly distributing more than 1.8 million pounds of food to nearly 30,000 households. In a non-crisis year, the NH Food Bank typically holds 12 mobile food pantry’s a year. Our organization continues to operate this model in the new year and will for years to come.

The beginning of the pandemic brought on the need for new levels of heightened emergency preparedness. Despite the lack of students and volunteers due to a temporary pause in programming, our Culinary Job Training kitchen persevered and increased our available meal inventory from 7,000 meals a week to approximately 35,000. Over the summer and fall, our team was called upon several times to provide immediate meal replacement for three nursing homes whose staff were ordered to quarantine. These orders covered two meals a day for two weeks at a time. In the absence of students, our staff had the opportunity to re-evaluate and redesign curriculum to create a more comprehensive lesson plan. Everything is now on a digital platform and ready to resume again. With this improved designed delivery and added tools, our Culinary Job Training program has begun the certification process with the American Culinary Federation to become a “Quality Assured” affiliate program which will bring increased professional opportunities for our students and graduates.

Our Cooking Matters NH program transitioned their curriculum to virtual Cooking Matters at Home workshops. 431 participants attended the workshops which included eight sessions, where parents learned how to interpret nutrition labels, healthy cooking techniques, food choices and how to substitute ingredients when faced with picky eaters or insufficient food. Becoming informed shoppers, confident cooks and meal planners not only improves household nutrition and relieves budgets, but also enables the next generation to acquire the nutrition knowledge, skills, and experience needed for a more food secure future.

The NH Food Bank piloted “NH Feeding NH” alongside community partners, NH Food Alliance, NH Farm Bureau and NOFA-NH. This statewide initiative was designed to support the purchase of NH grown food to feed food insecure neighbors nutritious locally grown foods while supporting our local farmers, replenishing the local economy and helping to reduce food waste during COVID-19 and beyond. 170 farms participated in the pilot program providing 77 NH Food Bank partner agencies with a total of nearly 40,000 pounds of nutritious, locally grown produce, meat and dairy. NH Feeding NH is on track to become an established program in 2021.

These are just a few examples of the tremendous strides made to address food insecurity in the last year as a result of your generous support. Thank you for being a part of our mission. We look forward to what we will accomplish together in the new year.
